

DECLARATION OF FREEDOM CREEDO

Throughout the eons of time, slavery has been a dominant force in all the powerful monopolies in the cataclysmic saga known as human history.

It was first seen in Egypt, when the pharaohs drove the Hebrews to near extinction. Then in Rome, with Julius Caesar leading his fierce warriors into battle, hurling his flanks towards certain death. Now, we see it once again... in the Glades at Schweitzer Mountain.

We have toiled and strived in the muck and mud, lifting and moving boulders of immense proportions. AND FOR WHAT?!? The OVERSEERS are reaping the benefits of the fruits of our endeavors, growing more and more powerful with each shovelful of dirt.

Even though freedom seems unobtainable, never abandon hope. My friends, comrades, and fellow toiling slaves – never release that tiny, stifled voice inside of you that whispers, “we are not meant for this”... for that miniscule sliver of light deep in our souls is what will eventually become the map to the Land of Milk and Honey. The time has come!!

Remember fellow tortured ones, that the fair maidens await down in the valley. And one day, when the overseers least expect it, we will throw down our shovels and rakes! We will rise up from our toil and strife! And we will descend down the evil MOUNTAIN OF DOOM and into the Land of Milk and Honey. We will rush into the caressing arms of the fair maidens of the Land; and we will once again be Free, Free, Free...

J. Kamin
S. Kuperstock

1994